

Unique strengths for industries and jobs

by Safir Boukhalfa

Neurodivergent strength	Potential industries	Potential job roles	Why this strength works well
Different sensory perception	Arts, Entertainment, Manufacturing, Quality Control	Sensory Scientist, Quality Assurance Specialist, Sound Technician, Artist	Ability to perceive subtle sensory details can enhance creativity, quality control, and technical analysis.
Unique social interaction patterns	Education, Human Health and Social Work, Scientific & Technical Activities	Teacher, Counselor, Sociologist, Psychologist	Different perspectives in social interaction can create innovative educational methods, empathetic counseling, and unique research insights.
Differences with executive functioning	IT and Software Services, Administration & Service Activities, Arts, Entertainment	Software Developer (with flexible work structure), Administrative Assistant, Creative Writer	Differences in executive function can inspire creative problem solving and adaptability in flexible or supportive environments.
Hyperfocus or hyperfixation on interests	Information & Communication, Machinery & Equipment, Social Sciences, Natural Sciences, Manufacturing, Research and Development	Data Analyst, Mechanical Engineer, Research Scientist	Deep focus can lead to high levels of expertise and innovative solutions in technical and research roles.
Exceptional creativity and artistic expression	Arts, Entertainment, Advertising & Marketing, Education	Graphic Designer, Art Director, Art Teacher, Marketing Manager	Creative talents contribute to artistic innovation, impactful advertising, and inspiring education.
Aptitudes in math and technology	IT and Software Services, Financial & Insurance Activities, Education	Software Engineer, Financial Analyst, Math Teacher	Strong technological & mathematical skills are crucial in these fields for problem solving and innovation.
Deep empathy and a strong sense of justice	Human Health and Social Work Activities, Public Administration & Defense, Non-Profit Organizations	Social Worker, Policy Analyst, Non-Profit Manager	Empathy & a justice oriented approach are vital for advocating for others and driving social change.

Neurodivergent strength	Potential industries	Potential job roles	Why this strength works well
Different emotional processing	Arts, Entertainment, Human Health and Social Work, Education	Actor, Therapist, Educational Psychologist	Strong emotions can enhance creative performance and provide deeper insights into human psychology.
Diverse language abilities	Information & Communication, Education, Public Administration & Defense	Teacher, Counselor, Sociologist, Psychologist	Language skills enhance communication, education, and diplomatic relations across cultures.
Non-linear thinking	Professional, Scientific and Technical Activities, IT & Software Services, Creative Industries	Strategy Consultant, Software Developer, Graphic Designer	Non-linear thought processes drive innovative solutions and strategic thinking in complex problem-solving.
Great memory and information retention	Education, Financial and Insurance Activities, Libraries and Archives	History Teacher, Accountant, Archivist	Excellent memory aids in managing detailed information, essential in education, finance, and archival work.
Strong pattern recognition and attention to detail	Data Analysis, Finance and Quality Control	Data Scientist, Financial Auditor, Quality Inspector	These skills are critical for analyzing data, ensuring financial accuracy, and maintaining high quality standards.
Hyper-systemizing abilities	IT and Software Services, Manufacturing, Transportation and Storage	Systems Analyst, Industrial Engineer, Logistics Manager	Systemizing skills are essential for optimizing processes, engineering design, and managing logistics efficiently.
Meticulous observation skills	Science and Research, Law Enforcement, Healthcare	Research Scientist, Detective, Medical Doctor	Observational precision is key in scientific research, investigative work, and medical diagnostics.
Verbal eloquence and communication	Public Relations and Communication, Education, Legal Services	Public Relations Specialist, Teacher, Lawyer	Strong communication skills are fundamental in public relations, education, and legal advocacy.